The screenshot shows the top of a web browser displaying an article from Crain's New York Business. The article title is "Picture this: NYC museums are drawing record crowds" by Miriam Kreinin Souccar, dated May 2, 2011. The browser's top navigation bar includes options like "Add to selected items", "Save to My Research", "Email", "Print", "Cite", "Export/Save", "Tags", and "SHARE". A dropdown menu is open under "Export/Save", listing options: "Save as file:" (PDF, RTF, HTML), "Text only (no images or text formatting)", "Export to:" (RefWorks, ProCite, EndNote, or Reference Manager, RIS), and "RIS". A dashed arrow points from the "Export/Save" button in the browser to the "RefWorks" option in the dropdown menu.

Create an alert

Alerts are automated email notifications you create to deliver new content as it becomes available in the database. There are two kinds of alerts that you can create:

Search alerts — notify you when new documents that match your search are available.

Click create an alert on the search or search results page.

Publication alerts — notify you when new issues of a selected publication are available.

Click create an alert on the publication search page.

The screenshot shows the ProQuest Arts & Humanities Full Text search interface. The search term "museum" is entered in the search bar, and the results show "328526 Results*". Below the search bar, there are options for "Full text" and "Peer reviewed", and buttons for "Modify search" and "Tips". A "Create alert" button is highlighted with a dashed arrow pointing to the "Publications" section below. The "Publications" section shows a list of results, with "Alaska Business Monthly" selected. A "Set up alert" button is visible next to the publication title. The "Publication information" section for "Alaska Business Monthly" shows the publication title and coverage from "Jan 1986 (Vol. 2, no. 1) - present (with exceptions)".
